WARSAW (Poland) OCTOBER 21.

THE King has given an anſwer to the declaration delivered by the Miniſters from Vienna, Peterſbourg, and Berlin, on the part of their reſpective Sovereigns, whereby his Majeſty alledges, that as the limits of Poland have been ſettled and acknowledged by various treaties, he cannot but conclude that theſe three powers have no pretenſions to any of the territories of the republic; he likewiſe claims the aſſiſtance of the mediators and guarantees of the treaty of Oliva, and proteſts ſtrongly againſt every proceeding contrary to the treaties and conventions therein recited.

FRONTIERS OF POLAND, Oct. 22. According to the laſt advices from Warſaw, the nobility of Great Poland have appointed Prince Anthony Sulkowſki their chief, and have entered into the following engagements: 1ſt. To oppoſe all the enterprizes of foreigners againſt them: 2dly. To regulate their reſpective intereſts, and what each diſtrict ſhall furniſh: 3dly. To pay nothing to the royal treaſury till after the holding of the Diet: And, 4thly. To notify theſe reſolutions to the King, and to all foreign courts.

We learn from Teſchen, that the Marchioneſs of Wielopolſki, after having formerly ſold all her jewels in ſupport of the Confederates, and ſince borrowed 1,200,000 ducats upon her eſtates, in that part which is fallen to the lot of the houſe of Auſtria, threw herſelf into a well in a fit of deſpair, but was taken out again, againſt her conſent, with only her arm broken.

DUBLIN, Nov. 3. We hear that his Majeſty's letters are come over for augmenting ſome ſalaries, for the change of ſeveral offices, and for ſome penſions.

Yeſterday his Majeſty's yacht the Dorſet, ſailed with the Hon. Miſs Townſhend, with her two youngeſt brothers, and ſome of his Excellency's houſhold, to Holyhead; where his Excellency the Earl of Harcourt is expected to-morrow or Thurſday, and in Dublin on Friday.

WHITEHALL, Nov. 6. The King has been pleaſed to appoint the Honourable Edward Hay, Captain-General and Governor in chief of his Majeſty's iſland of Barbados, in America, in the room of William Spry, Eſq; deceaſed.

The King has alſo been pleaſed to appoint Daniel Horſinanden, Eſq; Chief Juſtice of his Majeſty's province of New-York, in America.

LONDON, NOVEMBER 10.

Yeſterday morning the new and old Lord Mayors went from Guildhall (the mercers and merchant-taylors companies walking before them, with muſic playing and colours flying) accompanied by Aldermen Stephenſon, Cruſby, Sawbridge, Bull, and Plomer, the two Sheriffs, Common Serjeant, City Counſel, and other city officers, to Queenhithe, and embarking there on board the city barge, proceeded to Weſtminſter-Hall, where the Lord Mayor was ſworn in with the uſual ceremonies; they then returned to Blackfriars-bridge about two o'clock, and reached Guildhall at three, amidſt a great concourſe of people.

Yeſterday the mob ſeized the coach of the new Lord Mayor in King-ſtreet, and attempted to draw it back, crying out, that Wilkes ſhould go firſt—but no Wilkes appearing, they permitted it to proceed.

No leſs than eighteen plans for reducing the prices of proviſions are ſaid to have been ſent to Lord North ſince the breaking up of Parliament, from which his Lordſhip, it is ſaid, has formed one, effectually to anſwer the deſired purpoſe.

We are aſſured, that an application will be made, even in the royal ſpeech, for 400,000l. at leaſt, to defray the arrears of the civil liſt; and ſome go ſo far as to add, that a motion will be made to encreaſe it to a million annually; but this latter part of our information is not probable, as it would render a Great Perſonage too independent of his Miniſters.

Large as the revenue now annually granted to his Majeſty is, it is no more than what the Parliament granted to James the Second, almoſt a century ago, when money was nearly double its preſent value, and when the Princeſs Anne was the only individual of royalty chargeable for an eſtabliſhment to the crown.

It has been ſaid, that his Majeſty has encreaſed the ſalaries of the Judges, and that the encreaſe is paid out of the civil liſt; that an encreaſe has taken place is beyond diſpute, but it is not paid out of his Majeſty's pocket; a four pound ſtamp is laid upon all admiſſions into the four great law ſocieties, and theſe ſocieties pay the addition to the Judges ſalaries.

Lord Dartmouth holds his firſt levee as Secretary of State for America to-morrow, and will be attended by every individual in town, who has any conſiderable connection with the Colonies.

In caſe of a vacancy for the Chamberlainſhip, we hear no oppoſition will be made to Mr. Wilkes; as that employment will take him out of every character in which he can be obnoxious to the adverſe Aldermen.

"It has been aſſerted, that the general wiſh of the nation is for war; but we have a much better opinion both of the national good ſenſe and the national virtue; the loſſes by a war are blood and treaſure at a certainty, and the gains extremely precarious, if patriotiſm itſelf gives a juſt character of the laſt pacification.

On Friday night laſt a great Italian merchant ſhot himſelf.

NOVEMBER 11.

A Letter has been received by the Earl of Rochford, from his Majeſty's Ambaſſador at Conſtantinople, giving an account that a violent plague and ſcarlet fever rages there; in conſequence of which ſtrict orders have been to the ſeveral ſea-ports in this kingdom, to take the neceſſary precautions in caſe any ſhip arrives from Turky.

The merchant, Mr. C——, who ſhot himſelf on Friday, wrote a very affecting letter to his ſon-in-law, telling him, that the affairs of the partnerſhip were in a very good ſtate, though his own were miſerably deranged, and conjuring him in the ſtrongeſt terms to make a good huſband to his daughter.

Extract of a Letter from Paris, Nov. 1.

"All the Princes of the blood have received orders to attend his Majeſty on the 12th. The immoderate dearneſs of proviſions, joined to the tyrannic meaſures of government, are likely to produce a ſcene of anarchy. The guards, in this city, are augmented, and not one of the Miniſtry but has ſome in his houſe for his ſafety. Where theſe things will end, time only can diſcover."

Extract of a Letter from the Hague, Nov. 3,

"As the change of government in Poliſh Pruſſia muſt prove a great check to the corn trade which uſed to be carried on by the Dutch to that country, and particularly to Dantzick, where the new duties laid by the King of Prussia amount to almost a prohibition, it is said that the States-General are endeavouring to make good this deficiency, by adopting a scheme that has been proposed to them of raising all sorts of corn, but wheat in particular, at the Cape of Good Hope; the soil of which country is particularly fertile, and promises a crop equal to what comes from Zealand, which has always been held in great estimation. A great number of farmers, well versed in agriculture, it is said, are to be encouraged to go and settle in that country, by which means, it is not to be doubted, that in three years time we shall have a plentiful supply of corn from thence."

NOVEMBER 12.

Yesterday Prince Poniatowski, brother to the King of Poland, who lately arrived in town from that kingdom, was introduced to his Majesty at St. James's, and graciously received.

A house is taken in Soho-square, said to be for a distinguished Personage expected from Poland.

Recent advices from Spain mention, that a few weeks since, by order of the King, the heads of several religious houses were apprehended, and their papers seized, but upon what pretence had not transpired when these letters came away.

Extract of a Letter from Breslaw, Oct. 23.

"We here that the cities of Posnan, Kalitch, Siradea, Lenitza, and Rava, (which, comprised under one general name, are now called Great Poland) have refused to swear allegiance to any foreign power whatever, and all in one concord have put themselves in arms: Even both sexes are determined to fight as long as they can breath. These united cities are led and guided by one Count Sulasky, who is a descendant of the house of Stanislaw; he has published a manifesto, by which he encourages the inhabitants to fight for their liberty, as becomes a nation, renowned for their free spirit and undauntedness. For "what pleasure (says he) can life offer when liberty is lost."

NOVEMBER 13.

Yesterday, after the drawing-room was over, Lord North had the honour of a conference with his Majesty, for above half an hour.

This day, after the levee is over, there will be a cabinet-council, to which all the members who compose it, are specially summoned.

The King's speech was read on Tuesday last to a large company, friends to the government, who in general approved it very warmly, but it is thought that amendments will still take place in one or two passages which are not worded with sufficient perspicuity.

The Duke of Gloucester would have been long since received into favour at St. James's, if there could be any satisfactory reason for not shewing an equal indulgence to the Duke of Cumberland, but the danger of persecuting one brother into public eminence, by a notorious partiality to the other, has hitherto prevented the Duke of Gloucester's restoration to the King's favour, and will probably prevent it, till the Duke of Cumberland shall be thought to have sufficiently atoned for the crime of an honourable action.

Mr. Charles Fox's treaty with government, as it is absurdly stiled, is wholly without foundation. Mr. Fox is unquestionable a young man of great abilities, and will in time make a figure in the State; but as yet he is of too little importance to be an object of negociation with the Ministry.

The intelligence which we lately gave the public relative to the removal of the duties upon French wines, in consequence of France's taking our hardware, is gaining fresh confirmation every hour; and before the expiration of a twelvemonth, it is very probable that a bottle of good Claret will be as cheap as a bottle of Port in every tavern of London.

The Portuguese are greatly alarmed, and with good reason, at our negotiation with France relative to wine and hardware. The Marquis de Pombal, the first Minister, has lately closetted several of the factory at Lisbon, and shewed a condescension to the English merchants, which they have not experienced for many years at the hands of that haughty favourite.

It is said that France would not have agreed to the receipt of our hardware, in consideration of our taking her wines, if she was not apprehensive that our settlements on the Mississippi might be encouraged to rival her vineyards, especially as our Ministry appear extremely attentive to the Southern products of colonization.

Hardware manufactories are established in several parts of France, upon the plan of our Birmingham and Sheffield ones; but many years must elapse before they can gain any degree of perfection, and even then they will not be either so cheap or so good as the manufacture of England.

The Court of Vienna has for some time past been employed by a plan of removing many families from the neighbourhood of the Rhine to Bohemia, who have professed an intention of emigrating to America. The Imperial dominions in Bohemia and Hungary are very far from populous; and as the spirit of emigration possesses the Palatines to a very great degree, it is a piece of good policy in the Emperor to prevail upon them to occupy his immense territories towards the borders of Turky.

A letter from Madrid, dated Oct. 6, says, "Accounts, and very alarming ones, are constantly arriving here, of the rising of the native Indians on the Spaniards, which so frequently occurs, that if the court of Old Spain does not send over a considerable reinforcement to secure their dominions in Peru, Chili, La Plata &c. in South-America, they will run in great danger of losing them. Not only the Indians, but the Negroes and Mestizoes seem disaffected to the Spanish government. The last advices from Lima say, that a considerable body of natives had lately risen in that city, likewise in Cusco, and that much blood was spilt, before they could be properly brought to subjection."

By the last letters from Vienna we hear, that the Emperor is indefatigable in his attention to the affairs of the cabinet, frequently sitting in private with the members, where the attendance of every kind of domestic is dispensed, by a special order for that purpose. This occasions various speculations.

By advices from Saxony we learn, that the troops in garison at Prague have lately been considerably augmented, and that large magazines are now forming in that city.

The King of Prussia has lately issued an ordinance, by which he offers considerable emoluments to any shipwrights that will enter into his service.

All apprehensions of a war in the North, till the spring, are entirely vanished, the cold in Finland falling in so intense from October till May as to be an effectual bar to military operations.

NOVEMBER 14.

At a Court of Common-Council held yesterday, the Lord Mayor acquainted the court, that they were called to consider of the most effectual means of lowering the price of provisions.—It was moved to return thanks to the late Lord Mayor for his faithful discharge of the duties of that high and important office, &c. which passed in the negative. A motion was then made for censuring his conduct during his Mayoralty, for being guilty of violating the rights and privileges of the city; which passed in the affirmative; 6 Aldermen and 92 Commoners against 5 Aldermen and 47 Commoners.—It was resolved, that whoever has or hereafter may accept the office of a Judge in any of his Majesty's courts at Westminster, or has or may hereafter accept the office of Attorney or Solicitor-General to the King or Queen, or any patent or precedence from the crown, if appointed Recorder of this city, shall receive only the antient salary of 100l. for himself and deputy.—A committee, consisting of six Aldermen and twelve Commoners, was appointed to consider the most effectual means of lowering, or at least preventing an increase in the present price of corn and other provisions, who are to meet early, and use dispatch in reporting their proceedings. Two Aldermen and four Commoners to be a quorum.

The debates ran high at different intervals, during the course of which Mr. Wilkes spoke several times; and the various altercations kept the court sitting until past five o'clock.

The red ribbon, vacant by the death of Lord Carysfort, is said to be intended for Governor Tryon, of New-York, for his diligence and assiduity in dispersing the Regulators in North-Carolina, when he was Governor of that province.

The House of Commons will have no regular call till after the holidays.

A bill is preparing to be brought into Parliament next sessions, for prohibiting the ship-builders in this kingdom from constructing vessels for any foreign power, above a stipulated burthen.

Thursday some dispatches, said to be of importance, were received here from Holland, but the subject is not yet transpired.

A memorial is said to be now preparing, and will soon be sent to the court of Berlin, in behalf of the oppressed city of Dantzick.

We hear from the Hague, that their High Mightinesses have prohibited the exportation of any kind of provisions during the winter.

A gentleman just arrived from Paris assures us, that when he left that capital, the price of bread was about three-pence farthing per pound our money.

Some letters from the Hague mention, that the Prussian Ambassador has just delivered to their High Mightinesses his master's answer to the memorial of the States, relative to the city of Dantzick, and that he has received orders, in case of their non-agreement thereto, to return home immediately.

The Imperial troops in Poland, are ordered to go immediately into winter quarters.

Letters from Warsaw mention, that the principal inhabitants are removing with all their effects, with the utmost precipitation, into Holland.

They write from Leghorn, that two frigates have been taken and brought into that port by a Russian man of war from the Levant, bound to Constantinople, with stores for the use of the Grand Signior.

HAMBURGH (Germany) Nov. 3. The pretence and claims of the Count Schomberg to be the owner of our city, begins to become very serious. Our Senate were assembled the day before yesterday, at four o'clock in the afternoon, on this occasion, as antient claim is very dangerous in our time.

WAR-OFFICE, Nov. 13. His Majesty has been pleased to appoint Major-General Charles Fitzroy, of the 14th regiment of dragoons, to be Colonel of the 3d or King's own regiment of dragoons, in the room of the Earl of Albemarle deceased.

Lieutenant-General Eigoe Armstrong, of the Royal American regiment, to be Colonel of the 8th or King's regiment of foot, in the room of Lieutenant-General Webb, promoted to the command of the 14th regiment of dragoons. And,

Major-General Frederick Haldimand to be Colonel-Commandant of a battalion in the Royal American regiment, in the room of Lieutenant-General Armstrong.

ST. JAMES'S, Nov. 14. By accounts of undoubted authority from Scotland, it appears, that the report of the plague's having made its appearance at Lewis, one of the Western Islands, was not founded in truth; a putrid fever, which had prevailed for two or three months in that island, gave rise to the alarm: And several accounts which have been lately published, stating the infection as imported by goods landed from a vessel from Dantzick, at the island of Lewis, are equally void of foundation, as, by the last accounts received from Dantzick, it does not appear that there has lately been the least symptom of any infectious distemper in that city.

A sober, sedate young MAN,
Who writes a good Hand, understands something of Accounts, and can be well recommended, would be glad of Employment either in Town or Country,—though in the former will be most agreeable.—Should any Merchant or Factor be in want of such a Person, he flatters himself, that neither Industry or Endeavours on his Part would be unimployed to give Satisfaction; nor will his Terms, for the Sake of Employment, be unreasonable. From a late LONDON PAPER.

CAN any thing more ſtrongly paint the ſcandalous partiality of the Scotch to their own countrymen, than the extreme lenity and indulgence ſhewn to the perſon and character of Fordyce? Does it not ſufficiently explain the principle upon which they act, and prove to demonſtration, that their nationality is equally illiberal and diſhoneſt? Does it not prove, paſt a doubt, that their abhorrence of Mr. Wilkes, with which they daily choak and nauſeate the preſs, is not owing to his vices, but to his country and his principles? He is unfortunately an Engliſhman, and which is worſe, a Patriot. Had he been a North-Briton, and of arbitrary principles, he might have been as black as Hell, or any of the King's friends, without cenſure or reproach.—A Fordyce, the cooleſt, moſt ungrateful, and moſt cruel of all r—ls, whoſe inſolence of upſtart ambition ruined alike both friend and foe, merits from theſe hollow hypocrites no worſe epithets than the unfortunate, and excites only their pity and concern;—ſo well are they taught upon all occaſions of perſonal or national intereſt to call evil, good, and good, evil; and ſuch is their effrontery and diſſimulation, that even this pernicious bankrupt, when before his injured creditors, could talk of honour and conſcience, although driven by the force of evidence to own himſelf a premeditated villain. This evidence, by the ſoothing artifices of his friends, during his flight, he was in hopes to have ſunk upon the generoſity of Engliſhmen, who are too often the dupes of a falſe compaſſion. If any thing could equal this preſumption, it was the partiality of the commiſſioner, who brow-beat the creditors at his examination, who was not aſhamed to be the tool of Scotch artifice, and to ſhew more reſpect and concern for a culprit, that would have diſgraced the gallows, than for Engliſh gentlemen who were both his ſuperiors and creditors, as if the wretch had not been ſufficiently verſed in the arts of fraud, to ſkreen his baſe practices from public detection, without the help of this truckling ſycophant. It is an abuſe and proſtitution of the name of bankrupt to apply it to one, who, without the unavoidable riſks of trade, wilfully robbed his beſt friends of their all, under the double mask of friendſhip and credit.

Theſe remarks will probably, by ſome perſons, be thought ſevere; if they are juſt, I ſhall care but little for their ſeverity. Such crimes and criminals have no claim to lenity; and if I feel almoſt as ſtrongly for my own countrymen as the Scotch, I hope they can have no cauſe to complain. My feelings and prejudices are at leaſt honeſt, and ſhall never go ſo far as to ſkreen or vindicate a villain; that is a degree of patriotiſm referred for the virtues of our neighbours. According to our more confined idea of it, I may perhaps be indulged in a little local partiality as well as they; and I hope both my country and countrymen will warrant the attachment, at leaſt as well as theirs: For it is my opinion, that the beſt Scotchman, with all his negative virtues, falls ſomewhat ſhort of a bad Engliſhman, at leaſt in his ſocial and political character.

National reflections, where men think freely, and act independently, and conſequently from variety of characters, muſt be abſurd and often unjuſt; but in a nation where there is only one principle and one character, the caſe is different; ſince a reflection upon a worthleſs individual becomes there a national reflection, and is felt and reſented accordingly.—For myſelf, I declare, I have no perſonal ill will to the Scotch; my attacks upon them are founded ſolely on the law of retaliation, and that patriotic love of country, which they teach us to bound by the Tweed, though we wiſh to extend it even to the utmoſt Thule. But, alas! what generoſity of ſentiment, what intercourſe of ſociety, what overflow of benefits, can touch thoſe hearts, which, callous by climate, are petrified by ſelfiſhneſs!

MANLIUS.

From an Engliſh Paper of the 31ſt of October.

THERE can be little doubt but the war in Europe will become general, on or before Lady-day next. The unwearied aſſiduity of his Excellency the Ruſſian Ambaſſador at our court, who leaves no ſtone unturned to draw Great-Britain into a ſtronger alliance with Ruſſia, confirms this opinion of a general war. The viſit of his Serene Highneſs the Elector of Cologn, who is expected in the courſe of next week in London, is another confirmation of the ſtrong probability of an approaching general war. The long and ſecret reſidence of the Biſhop of Wilna in this metropolis, and the public character with which it is known (to all the foreign Miniſters) that Count Poniatoſki, brother to the King of Poland, is inveſted, corroborates the almoſt unavoidable neceſſity of Great-Britain's taking a deciſive part in the preſent troubles of Europe. The breaking up of the congreſs at Foczani; the new levies both in Ruſſia and Turky; the military motions of the Swedes towards the kingdom of Norway; and the ſeveral hypothecations of his Daniſh Majeſty to raiſe money to defend his dominions; not to ſpeak of the tremendous armies of the young Emperor and the King of Pruſſia, amount, in fact, to every thing but a formal declaration of a general war. Inconteſtible as theſe concurring evidences are, yet not any one of them ſingly, nor all of them conjointly, ſpeak to the purpoſe ſo demonſtrably clear, as the great pains our court has been at in prevailing on Duke Ferdinand of Brunſwick to decline all thoughts of entering into the King of Pruſſia's ſervice. All Europe allow him unqueſtionably to be the ableſt General of the preſent age; and our court, by depriving the King of Pruſſia of him, ſpeak as clearly as words can ſpeak, that there is an immediate and moſt urgent occaſion for engaging his Highneſs in the Britiſh or Hanoverian ſervice.

I muſt do Lord Rochford the juſtice to own, that, whether the war be Britiſh or Hanoverian, we are ſolely indebted to his Lordſhip's foreſight, and comprehenſive knowledge of the different cabinets on the continent, for this moſt important acquiſition. A few weeks will evince what I have ſaid.
